Summary Report

This research session sought to determine if the client's direct paternal ancestor, John Sherbondy, was the same person as Jean Charpentier, born 2 August 1734 in Virginy, Marne, France, son of Nicolas Charpentier and Marguerite Frere. In order to do this, we were to research Jean in French records to determine if he might have remained in France and if so, whether he had living descendants. If no evidence could be found showing Jean remained in France, we were to find living Y-DNA testing candidates who descended along the direct-paternal line of Jean's brothers.

We found no evidence that Jean Charpentier (1734) died in infancy, married in the area around Virginy, Marne, France, or remained in the area as an adult. However, neither did we find direct evidence that he moved elsewhere. Given this finding, we sought to document living descendants of Jean's siblings. We were able to find some direct paternal descendants of some individuals but found no male descent lines that extended into the modern day. We next sought to identify living descendants of the siblings of Jean's father, Nicolas Charpentier. This effort, too, was unfruitful. During future research, additional research in notarial records might be pursued to determine if the succession records of Nicolas Charpentier (1700-1759) make any mention of his son, Jean (1734). Additional research efforts might also be made to perform a radial search for Charpentier families in this area and identify living direct-paternal descendants who might be invited to perform Y-DNA testing.

Background

A host of online and compiled genealogies report that John Sherbondy who died 28 December 1798 in South Huntingdon, Westmoreland, Pennsylvania, was the same individual as Jean Charpentier, born 2 August 1734 in Virginy, Marne, France. However, none provide documentation or proof supporting this proposed connection. In order to learn more, we were tasked with determining if Jean Charpentier might have remained in France and had descendants there, or if not, to locate information on the direct paternal descendants of his siblings.

We commenced this research session by first attempting to determine if Jean might have remained in France. We located the original christening record of Jean Charpentier, born 2 August 1734 in Virginy, who was the son of Nicolas Charpentier and Marguerite Frere. We performed general and targeted page-by-page searches in the Catholic church records of Virginy and found no evidence that Jean Charpentier (1734) married or died in Virginy. We note that records are missing for the year of 1736, suggesting that if Jean Charpentier died in that year, his burial record may no longer be extant. We expanded our search to include records from towns within a 20-kilometer radius of Virginy and even further to include all communes in the Marne department. We found no records of later death or marriage for Jean Charpentier (1734).

We did, however, find records showing that Jean's family continued to reside in Virginy and surrounding towns. Considering the possibility that Jean remained in the area, but never married, we performed a review of all the marriage and death records for Jean's siblings and parents as well as the baptismal records for all of his nieces and nephews who could be identified. While some of the baptismal records for nieces and nephews of Jean included mention of one Jean Charpentier, a resident of Dommartin-sous-Hans, as a sponsor, we determined that this individual was likely the son of Pierre Charpentier, born in Dommarin-sous-Hans in 1751 – a nephew of Jean Charpentier (1734).

Given that no evidence could be located to suggest that Jean Charpentier (1734) continued to reside in the same area as his family, efforts were made to pursue your second goal: locating living descendants of the brothers of Jean Charpentier (1734).

Jean had four brothers, one of whom died single in young adulthood, and the other three of whom married and had children of their own. We utilized compiled online family trees, indexes of church records, and broad searches in the area to quickly and speculatively document direct-paternal descent lines from these brothers. Our efforts are detailed in separate appendices following the accompanying analysis.

Nicolas Charpentier (1739-1810) had four sons: Jean Silvin Charpentier, Joachim Charpentier, Pierre Ponce Charpentier and Jean Baptiste Charpentier. Jean Silvin Charpentier had three sons, at least two of whom died in infancy. Even if the other survived, we were not able to find documentation regarding his fate. Joachim Charpentier married later in life and had no documented children. Pierre Ponce Charpentier died in infancy. Jean Baptiste Charpentier's fate is uncertain.

Joachim Charpentier had three sons: Jean (1751), Pierre (1753), and another Pierre (1755). Jean (1751) had seven sons. From those sons, he had three grandsons. One died in infancy, another died single in 1880, and the third had no documented sons and died in 1904. Pierre (1753) had one son that died in infancy and several daughters. Pierre (1755) had three sons, but only one of them (Etienne) survived to adulthood and married. Etienne married twice and had four sons, two of whom survived to adulthood: Etienne Amedee and Etienne Alexandre. Etienne Amedee had a son named Etienne Alexandre Amedee

Charpentier who married in 1863 and had several children, but no documented sons. Etienne Alexandre had two sons – one who died single and the other who married but had no children.

Pierre Charpentier (1725) had two sons: Philippe and Jean. Philippe died in infancy. Jean had five sons: Francois Louis, Jean Louis Francois, Jean Alexius, Jean Joseph and Charles. Jean Alexius and Charles died in infancy. Jean Joseph's fate is as yet undetermined. Jean Louis Francois had only documented daughters. Francois Louis Charpentier had two sons: Jean Francois Gratien and Maurille. Maurille died in infancy. Jean Francois Gratien Charpentier married and had several daughters, but only had one son who died in infancy.

Given that our initial efforts to document direct-line male descendants of Jean Charpentier's siblings were unfruitful, we turned our attention to the direct-line male descendants of Jean's paternal uncles.

The family tree provided to us at the beginning of this research session reported that Jean's father, Nicolas Charpentier, was born in 1713 in Dormans, France. Several other family trees also suggested that Jean's father was born in 1713 and that he was the son of Nicolas Charpentier and Alix Puset. While we confirmed that an individual named Nicolas was indeed born to this couple in Cernay-en-Dormois, France in 1713, the chronology of Jean's family suggests that the Nicolas born in 1713 was probably not his father.

Jean's oldest known brother, Pierre Charpentier, died in 1755 at age 30, suggesting he was born in 1725. Baptismal records are missing for the parish of Virginy in 1725, so Pierre's original baptismal record could not be located. However, Jean's second oldest brother, Joachim, was born and baptized in 1728. If Jean's father, Nicolas, was born in 1713, then he would have been just twelve years old at the time of Pierre's birth and fifteen years old at the time of Joachim's birth. Both are unlikely scenarios. Further, the 1759 death record of Nicolas Charpentier which included two of his sons as witnesses, he was reported to have been 59 years old at the time of his death suggesting a birthdate closer to 1700. Since godparents at christenings were often close relatives (including siblings) of the parents of a child, we sought out each of the baptismal records for the children of Nicolas Charpentier and Marguerite Frere. None of the godparents for the christenings of Nicolas's children included individuals with the Charpentier surname.

A search for individuals named Nicolas Charpentier born in about 1700 revealed that one Nicolas Charpentier, son of Nicolas Charpentier and Nicolle Bastien, was born in Virginy and was baptized 15 April 1700. We performed additional research into this family and found that while this couple had several children, we could only identify two other potential sons of the couple: Jean Charpentier born in 1696 in Berzieux and Nicolas Charpentier born in 1698 in Berzieux. Given that the couple had another son named Nicolas born in 1700, it is likely that the older Nicolas (1698) died in infancy. Searches for additional information on Jean Charpentier (1696) yielded no promising leads.

Recommendations

Given the obstacles that have arisen in the current research session to identifying living direct paternal relatives of Jean Charpentier (1734), we recommend the following research avenues for future research efforts.

1. Perform additional research in original records to determine the fate of Jean Baptiste Charpentier son of Nicolas Charpentier (1738).
2. Perform additional research in original records in Paris to determine if Joachim Charpentier (1826) had any sons.
3. Perform additional research in original records to determine the fate of Jean Joseph Charpentier (1785), son of Pierre Charpentier.
4. Upgrade to the Big-Y level of testing in order to obtain additional data on the direct paternal line for future analysis.
5. Invite at least one other existing Sherbondy Y-DNA match to upgrade to the Big-Y level. Ideally this match would be a descendant of a different Sherbondy line than the client's as this will give the best insights into which mutations and variants are associated with John Sherbondy as compared to other haplogroup branches.

6. Invite Y-DNA match Dr. Richard Fell Carpenter to upgrade to the Big-Y level to determine how closely related he might be to John Sherbondy's descendants.
7. Perform autosomal DNA testing at AncestryDNA and 23andMe and then transfer DNA test results to MyHeritage, Family Tree DNA and GEDmatch in order to identify additional descendants of John Sherbondy who may have performed autosomal DNA testing.
8. Collaborate with other descendants of John Sherbondy to obtain access to their autosomal DNA test results since different descendants of John will have inherited different portions of his DNA and will therefore have different segments and different DNA matches who may be pertinent to the research objective.
9. Identify genetic cousins sharing DNA with multiple descendants of John Sherbondy through independent descent lines. This approach may be difficult to pursue given the distance to the research subjects of interest and the limitations of autosomal DNA evidence, but it might be possible with multiple descendants from unique descent lines.
10. Perform a radial search for Charpentier families in the vicinity of Virginy and its immediate environs to identify other male Charpentiers having sons around the same time as Nicolas Charpentier. Identify direct paternal living descendants of these individuals and invite them to perform Y-DNA testing as part of a larger Charpentier surname study in the region. Also invite them to perform autosomal DNA testing to determine if they share any DNA with any of the descendants of John Sherbondy.
11. Attempt to extend the ancestry of Nicolas Charpentier (1700) even further if possible through exploration of available church records.
12. Search for all instances where Nicolas Charpentier (1700) was identified as a godparent or witness in the records of other individuals in the parish of Virginy and surrounding parishes. Repeat the process for Nicolas Charpentier (1654) and Nicolle Bastien to determine if there is evidence in the connections to others that Nicolas and Nicolle were indeed the parents of Nicolas (1700). Search for evidence of the older couple's connections to others in efforts to extend their ancestry and identify additional Charpentier relatives in the area.
13. Perform onsite research in the Archives départementales de la Marne (with the assistance of Aimee Marie, an onsite agent who can be contacted at geneaservices@hotmail.com) to obtain more information on the fate of Jean Charpentier (1734) and to confirm his ancestry through notarial records and succession records for his father, Nicolas, who died in 1750.
14. Perform onsite research to learn more about the connections between various Charpentier family members in the vicinity of Virginy. If possible, trace direct paternal descendants of these families to the modern day to identify Y-DNA testing candidates.

We have appreciated the opportunity to research Jean Charpentier and his family in this research session and stand ready to aid in future research efforts relating to genetic genealogy analysis and testing of the hypothesis that Jean was the same individual as John Sherbondy.

Research Analysis

GOALS

- Determine whether the client's direct paternal ancestor, John Sherbondy, was the same as Jean Francois Charpentier. John Sherbondy died on 28 December 1798 in South Huntingdon, Westmoreland, Pennsylvania. Jean Francois Charpentier was born on 2 August 1734 in Virginy, Marne, Champagne-Ardenne, France and was the son of Nicholas Joseph Charpentier and Marguerite Frere.
  - Research Jean Francois Charpentier to determine whether he married, had children, and/or died in France, proving that he was not the same as John Sherbondy.
  - If Jean did marry and have children in France: Trace his direct male descendants to find a candidate for Y-DNA testing, in addition to a candidate from one of Jean's brother's descendants.
  - If Jean did not marry or die in France: Search for two living direct male descendants of his brothers for purposes of obtaining a DNA test to confirm or deny that Nicholas is the client's direct paternal ancestor.
  - Only after receipt of DNA results (that match each other) should generational linkage proof research be started on one of the lines.
  - No research on biographical information, siblings or spouses needs to be performed.

Next, we needed to search for information on his family members to determine if they remained in the area and to see if he was mentioned in any of the records relating to their vital events. This baptismal record confirms that Jean Charpentier was born 2 August 1734 in Virginy, France and was the son of Nicolas Charpentier and Marguerite Frere. individual. We found no record of a later marriage or death for the Jean Charpentier of interest. A page-by-page search of a sample of the indexed records at Filae shows that the church records from 1734 have a mixture of baptism, marriage and burial records, and that all entries have been indexed. We note that the records for 1736 are missing from the collection. If Jean who was born in 1734 died in 1736, then his burial record may no longer be extant.

https://en.geneanet.org/ , subscription database, accessed March 2022.	Likewise, a search of records at Geneanet revealed no indications in indexed original records nor in compiled family trees that Jean Charpentier (1734) went on to marry, have children or die in France. Even so, these indexes do not appear to be complete, and compiled family trees may not have all of the information regarding the fate of Jean.
We have found no record of a later death or marriage for Jean Charpentier (1734) in Virginy in the immediate vicinity of where he was born. We have found that burial records are missing for the parish of Virginy for 1736, so if Jean died in that year, his burial record may no longer be extant. If Jean Charpentier survived childhood, we would expect that he continued to reside with his family through at least age 16 and likely through age 20 or 21 (the age of majority in France). We sought to determine if his family continued to reside in Virginy and found several records of their continued residence there described in the following section. With these records, we also sought to determine if Jean might have been identified as a witness to any vital acts for his family members.

Given that some of his family members were married in surrounding parishes and communes, we searched for a marriage record for Jean Charpentier between 1754 and 1774 within 20 kilometers of Virginy. No record was found. While the indexes for Virginy are complete for this time period, the records for surrounding communes may not be. We also searched for death records for Jean Charpentier between 1734 and 1834 and found no pertinent records.

We conclude that the family of Jean remained in the area and vicinity of Virginy. A brother and both parents died there between 1750 and 1759. Other brothers were married in the vicinity. We next searched for additional records of the extended family of Jean to learn if Jean ever appeared as a godparent or witness to the vital acts of close family members. We found mention of several nieces and nephews of Jean in compiled family trees and sought their original birth records to determine if Jean was a witness. Only those records deemed potentially pertinent are included as documents with this report.

Jean Charpentier of Dommartin was a godparent. We still consider it likely that this refers to Jean, son of Pierre, rather than Jean born in 1734. In our review of the baptismal records of the nieces and nephews of Jean Charpentier (1734), we found just one baptismal record where Jean Charpentier might have acted as godparent to the subject of the act. One Jean Charpentier was the godfather of Marie Anne Charpentier, daughter of Nicolas Charpentier and Claudine Chevalier. This Jean was a resident of Dommartin and his co-sponsor (the godmother of the child) was Marie Anne Mattelin of Virginy. This Jean's residence and the identity of his co-sponsor suggest that he was probably the Jean Charpentier who married Marie Anne Mattelin in Virginy in November 1776 and who was the son of Pierre Charpentier and Marie Anne Varoquier. Therefore, he would have been a nephew of Nicolas and a first cousin of Marie Anne whose baptism he sponsored. We conclude that this baptismal record probably does not refer to the Jean Charpentier of interest who was born in 1734. Given

these findings, we next turned our attention to the secondary goals of this research session to document living descendants of Nicolas Charpentier, father of Jean (1734), in order to arrange targeted Y-DNA testing.

SUMMARY OF QUICK AND SPECULATIVE DESCENT TREE EFFORTS

Source	Comments
APPENDIX I	No living direct paternal descendants of Nicolas Charpentier (1739-1810) were identified.
APPENDIX II	No living direct paternal descendants of Joachim Charpentier (1728-1781) were identified.
APPENDIX III	No living direct paternal descendants of Pierre Charpentier (1725-1755) were identified.

Quick and speculative research efforts did not result in the identification of any living direct paternal descendants of Jean Charpentier's brothers. Given that no living direct paternal descendants for Nicolas Charpentier and Marguerite Frere could be identified in the current research session, we next turned our attention to the immediate family of the elder Nicolas Charpentier (1700).

A compiled family tree reported that Nicolas Charpentier, father of Jean Charpentier (1734), was born in 1713 and died in 1759. It reported that he was the son of Nicolas Charpentier and Alexis Puisieu. It also reported that he had siblings Roger and Bertrand born in 1712 and 1715. While this was initially promising, additional analysis revealed conflicts in evidence. When Nicolas Charpentier died in 1759, he was reported to have been 59 years old, suggesting a birthdate closer to 1700.

While we found corroboration that one Nicolas Charpentier, son of Nicolas and Alix Puiset, was born in 1713 and was a real individual, the fact that he was born in 1713 and was therefore only 12 years old when Pierre Charpentier (1725) was born suggests that this individual was not the same person as the father of Jean Charpentier (1734). In order to learn more about the potential siblings and parents of Nicolas Charpentier (1700), we sought out the original birth records of his children to determine if any witnesses or godparents might have been Nicolas's siblings.

Comparison of the signature on this record against the signature of Pierre Charpentier on his 1750 marriage record (to Marie Anne Varoquier) shows several similarities between the signature, suggesting they well could refer to the same individual.

Searches were performed for each of the individuals mentioned as godparents to the Charpentier children and while several records were found for several, no indications of close family relationships to the Frere or Charpentier families were apparent.

DOCUMENT 20.
https://en.filae.com/, subscription database, accessed March 2022.	A search for the fate of Jean Charpentier born in 1696 did not result in any strong candidates.
https://en.geneanet.org/, subscription database, accessed March 2022.	Same as above - No strong candidates.
https://en.filae.com/, subscription database, accessed March 2022.	A search for any individuals with the Charpentier surname in Moiremont (the reported residence of Nicolas at the time of his marriage to Nicolle Bastien) revealed no other individuals in indexes for that commune between 1600 and 1700.
While some compiled records reported that Nicolas Charpentier, husband of Marguerite Frere, was the son of Nicolas Charpentier and Alexis Puiseu, additional exploration of chronology and geography suggested this was probably not the case. Instead, it was found that Nicolas, husband of Marguerite, may have been born in 1700 in Virginy and might have been the son of Nicolas Charpentier and Nicolle Bastien. We identified several other children of this couple including a possible son named Jean (1696) and another son named Nicolas (1698) who both likely died in infancy. No information could be found to definitively trace son Jean (1696) forward in time. All other known children of Nicolas and Nicolle were found to be daughters. Therefore, it is unlikely that Y-DNA testing candidates will be found among the descendants of Nicolas Charpentier and Nicolle Bastien. As it will be difficult to confidently extend the ancestry of Nicolas Charpentier who died in 1710 in Virginy, the best remaining approach might be to perform a radial search for Charpentier families having children in the same general vicinity and pursue a surname study of Charpentier families in this region.
EXPLORATION OF ONSITE RESEARCH OPTIONS
Source	Comments
Email, Paul Woodbury, re: Onsite Research Options, sent to Aimee Marie (geneaservices@hotmail.com), 26 June 2022, author's files.	As part of the remaining research hours, we were asked to contact our onsite agent, Aimee Marie, and request information regarding additional possible avenues for onsite research efforts. In response to this request, our onsite agent offered several ideas for further research. First, she recommended that a search should be performed to locate the succession records of Nicolas Charpentier who died in 1759. These records would be in notarial records of which the Archives départementales de la Marne has a good collection from the time period of interest. If a record could be found, then it should list all

	heirs of Nicolas still living. In turn this might offer evidence in favor of or against the hypothesis that Jean Charpentier (1734) was the son of Nicolas (1700). While these records might include a last will and testament or other form of succession document for Nicolas Charpentier, there is never any guarantee that such a record was created. Aimee also commented that it makes sense to her that the Sherbondy surname and the Charpentier surname might be associated given the phonetics and potentially harsh accents. During future research, Aimee might be contacted directly (geneaservices@hotmail.com) in order to pursue these and other onsite research efforts to determine if there is any evidence that Jean Charpentier (1734) was the same individual as John Sherbondy; to extend the ancestry of Nicolas Charpentier (1700) if possible; and to identify (again if possible) living direct paternal relatives who might be invited to perform DNA testing. She might be available to perform onsite research after September 2022.

Appendix I: Descendants of Nicolas Charpentier

The following quick and speculative descent tree commences with documents and records discussed in the main analysis report and moves into compiled resources and indexes to quickly determine the fate of the sons of Nicolas Charpentier (1739) and extend (where possible) their descent lines to the modern day. These efforts were done with little analysis and only links to pertinent records and resources in order to make the most of the available research time in search of living descendants.

Appendix II: Descendants of Joachim Charpentier

The following quick and speculative descent tree commences with documents and records discussed in the main analysis report and moves into compiled resources and indexes to quickly determine the fate of the sons of Nicolas Charpentier (1700) and extend (where possible) their descent lines to the modern day. These efforts were done with little analysis and only links to pertinent records and resources in order to make the most of the available research time in search of living descendants.

No direct paternal descent lines to the modern day were found among the descendants of Jean born in 1751.

Appendix III: Descendants of Pierre Charpentier

The following quick and speculative descent tree commences with documents and records discussed in the main analysis report, and quickly moves into compiled resources and indexes to quickly determine the fate of the sons of Pierre Charpentier (1725) and extend (where possible) their descent lines to the modern day. These efforts were done quickly and speculatively with little analysis and only links to pertinent records and resources in order to make the most of the available research time in search of living descendants.
